- 40% of decorative demand comes from fresh constructions, while the remaining 60% is driven by repainting. Automobile OEMs, industries, and railways use industrial paints.
- The decorative paint industry in India currently accounts for 65% to 70% of the total paint industry. However, when your parents were likely to have invested in it, it was only 50%. At that time, India was experiencing growth in the number of factories, which exceeded the number of houses being built.The demand for paint colours depends on how many houses, cars, and buildings are being made. And people also repaint their stuff when they have more money and want things to look nice.

Evaluating stocks like this was quite uncommon 15 to 20 years ago. Information wasn't as easily accessible, and there were very few bloggers. So, your ancestors who invested in the paint industry back then must have been forward-thinkers.And when it comes to painting, there's a unique story to it. We all recall how Harshad Mehta manipulated ACC shares, taking them from 200/- per share to 9000/- per share.
